

THE CLOSING OF LENT

Services of Holy Week Will End the Penitential Season.

Palm Sunday and Its Commemoration—Palm Sunday Will Be Blessed and Distributed to the Faithful—Hours of Services.

To-day begins what is known in the church calendar as Palm Sunday, the beginning of Holy Week, or the close of the Lenten season. Palm Sunday takes its name from the ceremony performed in the Catholic churches throughout the world on this day of blessing palms, or other green boughs, and distributing them to the congregations. The service is in observance of the triumphal entry of our Saviour into Jerusalem five days before his crucifixion, and is consecrated to the special commemoration of our divine Saviour's sufferings and death. At mass the history of the passion is recited or sung.

At St. Mary's the palms will be blessed and distributed to the congregation before the 11 o'clock service.

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of Holy Week, the office of Tenebrae, which consists of the Matins and Lauds of the last three days, is recited or chanted, during which fourteen yellow lights, mounted on a triangular stand, are extinguished one by one, after each reading, leaving only the white one at the summit, lighted. At the end of every second verse of the "Benedictus" one of the lights on the altar is put out, until all are extinguished. This extinction of the lights typifies the abandonment of our divine Saviour during his passion. He is represented by the white candle at the top of the candlestick, which, during the "miserere," is taken from the triangular stand and placed behind the altar until a slight noise is made at the end of the office, to signify the converse state of nature at the death of Christ, when it is brought forth again and replaced on the candlestick, from which it is taken, to remind us that the divinity of our Lord was never separated from his humanity.

HOLY THURSDAY

Maundy Thursday, or Holy Thursday, in memory of our Lord's last supper, when he instituted the Blessed Sacrament of his precious body and blood, is called from the first word of the anthem, "Mandatum," etc. (John xiii:34): "I give you a new command that you love one another, as I have loved you," which is sung on that day in the church. On Holy Thursday, by one mass is said, that of the Holy Eucharist, as an expression of joy and gratitude for the Holy Institution, though its special commemoration is deferred until Good Friday, the day being wholly occupied during Holy Week with the passion of Christ. During the "Gloria" the bells are rung, after which they are silent until the same time of the mass on Holy Saturday. To honor the silence of our Saviour during his passion, and express the mourning of the church for the death of her divine Son, at the mass of this day the bishop consecrates the holy oils which are used in the administration of the sacraments. After mass the sacred host consecrated for the office of the following day is carried in procession to a repository prepared for its reception, which is also divested of all its usual ornaments, to represent the desolation of our Saviour in his passion, and the grief of the church in recalling his sufferings.

GOOD FRIDAY.
Christ crucified is the great object that engages the attention of the church on this day, and for this end she reads such lessons and tracts as relate to the mystery of redemption. The passion is sung in the morning office and prayers are offered up for all sorts of persons to whom grace is excluded from the sufferings of the church, since Jesus Christ offered himself a victim for the sins of all mankind. Next the clergy and laity adore Jesus Christ crucified, which they express by the veneration paid to the cross. After the ceremony the sacred host is brought from the repository to the altar and the service is concluded by the priests receiving the divine victim that was slain on this day.

HOLY SATURDAY

The Tenebrae, of Matins, with the other canonical hours for this day, are consecrated to the memory of our Lord in the sepulchre; at mass he is represented to the faithful as coming out of the grave and triumphing over death by his resurrection. The word, "nisi" (unless) in the benediction of the Paschal Candle, in the collect of the mass, in the preface and communions, shows that the office and mass, now said in the middle of the day, were formerly said on the following night, to honor the time of our Saviour's resurrection, which happened in the night.

The altars deprived of their ornaments on Maundy Thursday, are again clothed with them, and a new fire is kindled in the altar, which begins with burning incense, which is emblematic of the light of Christ, and signifies that the faith of the Blessed Trinity proceeds from the Father, communicated to us by Christ. After the mass, the Paschal candle, blessed in the past night, is placed in the sanctuary. The lighting of the Paschal candle is a figure of the body of Jesus Christ, and not being lighted at first represents him dead and the five burning grains of incense fixed in it denote the wounds which he endured for us. The lighting of the candle in the sanctuary, the lighting of the lamps and other candles afterward, teaches the faithful that the resurrection of the dead will be followed by that of the members.

After this ceremony the church disposes the catechumens for a worthy reception of baptism, for which purpose she reads two lessons out of the Old Testament, called Prophecies, and after each says a solemn prayer; by both of which she not only instructs them in the effects and fruit of that sacrament, but begs for them, of Almighty God, all the advantages which it confers. The lighting of the Paschal candle, which was lighted at the death of our Saviour, and came out again, truly alive, so the sinner is buried in the baptismal water, as in a mystic grave, and is raised out again, animated with a new life of grace. After the burial together with Him by baptism into death, that as Christ is risen from the dead by the glory of the Father, so we also may walk in the newness of life. (Rom. vi:4.)

Before the administration of the sacrament the baptismal font is blessed with ceremonies full of mystery. The priest divides the water in form of a cross, to teach us that it confers grace and sanctity by the merits of Christ crucified. 2. He touches the water with his hand, praying that it may be free from all impressions of evil spirits. 3. He signs it thrice with the sign of the cross, to bless in the name of the Holy Trinity. 4. He separates it with his hand, and casts out some of it towards the four parts of the world, to instruct us that the grace of baptism, like the rivers of paradise, flows all over the earth. 5. He breathes three upon it in the form of a cross, desiring God to bless it with the infusion of His holy spirit, that it may receive the virtue of sanctifying the soul. 6. He incenses the paschal candle thrice into it, praying that the Holy Ghost may descend upon it, as he did at the baptism of Christ in the waters of Jordan. 7. He mixes holy oil and chrism with it, to signify that baptism consecrates us to God, and gives spiritual strength to wrestle with and overcome all the enemies of the soul.

After the benediction of the font, the Sacrament of Baptism is solemnly administered to such as are prepared for it; and the Banns and mass are sung to signify that the new baptized may persevere in the grace they have received. Incense is used at the gospel to represent the perfume carried by the women in our Saviour's monument, but no lights are used, as the faithful did not yet believe his resurrection, for which reason, also, the cross is not used. The officiating, the kiss of peace and the communion, which the faithful did not receive the blessed Eucharist at this mass, but waited till Easter day. The hours of service in St. Mary's and the Sacred Heart Church during the week will be as follows:

Perpetual Springtime.

Youth is the springtime of life. There is a delightful charm about this season of the year—a brightness and buoyancy—an era of happiness and good feeling that is known at no other time. The strength and vigor of youth, with its boundless energy, make this a season of delight and pleasure that in most cases is too soon past. Just how long we can enjoy this season of buoyancy and happiness depends entirely upon our physical condition. Some people are old at forty; they have allowed impurities to accumulate in the blood, absorb the energies, break down their nerves, and totally unfit them for the sharp competition of life. Others are young at sixty; their step is elastic, their minds free from the worries of physical ills—they are full of energy and vigor. They keep their blood pure, and enjoy perpetual physical springtime. This can be the experience of all who will rely upon and keep the system free from impurities which are constantly accumulating. Whatever your ailment may be called, in nine cases out of ten it originated from impure blood. S. S. S. has no equal for building up the system, and imparting new life and vigor. It increases the appetite, renews the fagged-out energies and imparts elasticity to the step, and vigor to the whole body. There are many so-called tonics, but there is only one S. S. S. Insist upon the best—the best is S. S. S.
